GOVERNMENT CONTROL ADOPTED BY NOVA SCOTIA

PRICES RISE TO BAIT OF NEW BUYERS

Leading Exchanges in United States Rally Well to Improve Recently Created Conditions

MANY ARE BUYING AT PRESENT LOWS

Early Gains Reduced by Profit Takers, but Market Later Regains Its Immediate Losses

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—Prices of securities in all of the leading exchanges of the country rallied sharply again today in response to a tremendous investment and speculative demand created by a long succession of bullish financial developments.

When the New York Stock Exchange opened at noon, two hours later than usual, there was such a huge accumulation of buying orders that prices of active issues were whirled up $5 to $30 a share as blocks of 5,000 to 50,000 shares changed hands.

These gains were cut down in the subsequent waves of selling, representing profit taking by traders who had bought stocks in Tuesday's reaction and the liquidation of stocks bought for supporting purposes, but final quotations disclosed a long list of net gains of $2 to $20 in the leading stocks.

Total sales in the three-hour trading period were 7,149,300 shares, or well above the average five-hour session.

Long before the New York markets opened London cables carried the report that the Bank of England had reduced its discount rate from 6 to 5 per cent, signaling the passing of the world credit stringency created by the wild securities speculation earlier in the year. This was followed by a long series of increased and extra dividends by industrial and public utility companies and the announcement of the purchase by the United States Steel Corporation of the Columbia Steel Company of California.

After the market closed the New York Federal Reserve Bank reduced its discount rate from 6 to 5 per cent and reported a record-breaking decrease of $1,000,000,000 in brokers' loans as a result of the huge liquidation of securities during the past week.

FUNDS WITHDRAWN
Loans for the account of others dropped more than two billion dollars, indicating the wholesale withdrawal of funds from the call loan market by corporations and financial institutions, presumably to take advantage of the bargain prices prevailing, for a time, in the securities markets, whereas New York bankers increased their loans more than one billion dollars during the stock market crisis.

1,858 PERSONS ADDED TO LIST

REGISTRATIONS FOR VOTERS' LIST THIS YEAR SHOWS INCREASE OVER 1928

Big Rush Is Experienced at City Hall Office on Final Day, When 117 Register

Registration of householders and licensees for the city voters' list for 1929-1930 closed at the City Hall yesterday. During the past thirty days, a total of 1,731 householders and 127 licensees were added to the list, making a grand total of 1,858, which is an increase of thirty-four over last year's registration total of 1,824 during the corresponding period.

There was a big rush at the City Hall yesterday, the final day for registering, and no less than 105 householders and twelve licensees had their names placed on the list. Registered owners of property did not have to register, their names being placed on the list automatically.

The first available copy of the municipal voters' list will be posted in the City Hall on November 18, and remain posted until Wednesday, November 20, when the Court of Revision on the voters' list for 1929-1930 will meet to check the list, make any alterations required, and finally approve it.
Mayor Herbert Anscomb and Aldermen Robert A. C. Dewar and John L. Mara constitute the Court of Revision on the voters' list.

Mayor Anscomb and Aldermen of Victoria

EVERY year a group photograph of the Mayor and City Council of Victoria is taken, and a framed portrait is hung on the walls of the council chamber at the City Hall. The above photograph was taken this week of Mayor Anscomb and the 1929 City Council. Members of the council in this group are as follows, from left to right: Seated, Aldermen John Harvey, Alderman William Marchant, His Worship Mayor Anscomb, Alderman W. H. Cullin and Alderman H. O. Litchfield; standing, Alderman John A. Worthington, Alderman John Lytton, Alderman James Adam, Alderman Robert A. C. Dewar, Alderman William T. Straith and Alderman Eugene S. Woodward.

M. PILSUDSKI CLOSES DOWN POLISH DIET

Extraordinary Scene Takes Place in Poles' Parliament When Ex-Dictator Stops Opening Session

CREATED BY MILITARY MEN

WARSAW, Oct. 31.—Marshal Jozef Pilsudski, former dictator of Poland, today climaxed his long-standing feud with the Polish Diet by invading the parliamentary building with eighty army officers and stopping the opening session of the national legislature.

The upshot of this strange manoeuvre was the postponement of Parliament until after the Marshal and Ignace Daszynski, Speaker of the Diet, have had opportunity to confer with President Moscicki.

Members of the Diet were non-played by the happening of the day, but could not but speculate as to what might happen next. Newspapers of the capital issued extra editions describing the affair, but most of them were confiscated as quickly as they appeared on the streets.

SOME ACTION EXPECTED
The Diet had been called for the purpose of discussing the budget. There had been rumors that the opposition to Premier Salski, who is a close follower of Marshal Pilsudski, was preparing a resolution of non-confidence, but there was nothing concrete in these reports.

Then it was learned that the Premier had fallen ill and that Marshal Pilsudski would take his place at the opening of the Diet. The House assembled at 4 p.m., but the former dictator had not appeared. The next thing the members of the Parliament knew, the lobby was filled with military officers in full uniform.

Again there was a long wait, and then, after nearly an hour, Pilsudski arrived. He was enthusiastically cheered by the soldiers. Speaker Daszynski sent a sergeant-at-arms to the lobby with the request that the officers leave the building, but they refused on the ground that the request had been made in a rude manner.

The Speaker then sent a letter to the President, acquainting him with the circumstances and saying that he was unable to follow out executive instructions and open the Diet. Marshal Pilsudski then went to see the President himself, and the announcement of postponement followed.

Cheerfulness Once Again Reigns on London Stock And Financial Exchanges

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Cheerfulness reigned over London's money and stock markets today in sharp contrast with the anxiety of the past few days when the stock exchange became unsteady in reacting to the fluctuations of prices on Wall Street.

CHILD IS BURNED IN HOSPITAL FIRE

SHOAL LAKE, Man., Oct. 31.—An infant was burned to death last night when fire completely destroyed the hospital at Shoal Lake, 150 miles northwest of Winnipeg. Nine adults and two other babies, patients, escaped with the staff, Miss Helen Ayton, matron, made heroic but futile efforts to find the missing child in the smoke-filled building.

The baby was the two weeks old child of J. A. Grimson, a farmer at Gerald, Sask.

BOY SCOUTS TO HAVE CENTRAL BUILDING HERE

Erection of Suitable Headquarters' Structure on Johnson Street Will Commence Early Next Week

KIWANIS CLUB IS SPONSOR OF WORK

Construction of a headquarters building for the Boy Scouts in Victoria on property on the north side of Johnson Street, between Vancouver and Cook Streets, donated by the City Council, will commence early next week. Mr. C. Elwood Watkins, local architect, announced yesterday.

The permanent headquarters, when completed, will be the centre from which the whole Boy Scout movement on the southern end of Vancouver Island will radiate. The building will be utilized for meetings of the various Scout troops in the city proper, and will be available for interclub gatherings of city Scout troops and troops from towns and cities outside of Victoria.

Plans are already being made for the laying of the corner stone of the building, which will probably take place in several weeks' time, at which ceremony it is expected, Hon. R. R. Bruce will officiate.

Level Crossing At Nanaimo Is Scene of Crash

NANAIMO, Oct. 31.—An accident that proved disastrous for the car, but fortunate for the driver, occurred at about 5 minutes after 8 this morning on the railway crossing on Albert Street, when an E. & N. freight train and a Ford truck collided. Mr. Bob Halberg, driver of the car and an employee of the General Auto Sales, Limited, it seems, was proceeding down Albert Street, on his way to work, and failed to notice the approaching train, a view of the railway tracks there being obscured by a store recently erected. Halberg noticed the southbound train too late to avoid a crash and turned his car to run alongside the engine. There not being sufficient room there, the engine struck the auto, throwing out Mr. Halberg, who sustained a few cuts and bruises. The auto was carried along the rails for some twenty feet and was completely demolished.

CAPETOWN, S.A., Oct. 31.—The Agricultural Congress here will call the South African Union to call a conference of farming interests of all the Dominions, to be held in South Africa in 1931, for the purpose of securing interimperial co-operation.

BRITISH SHIP CUT DOWN BY PATROL BOAT

Suspected of Being Rum Runner Had Her Stern Demolished by U.S. Coast-guard Vessel

CLAIMED TO HAVE BEEN AN ACCIDENT

NEW LONDON, Conn., Oct. 31.—The British vessel, James B. suspected rum runner, sank within fifteen minutes after her stern had been cut off by the coastguard patrol boat, Calhoun, thirty miles off the coast of Long Island last night. The crew of eight aboard the James B. was picked up soon after the ship sank and brought here. They are being held pending inquiry by customs, immigration and coastguard authorities. The boatwain, A. M. A. Haines, commander of the Calhoun, said the accident occurred because the James B. was running without lights, crossed the bow of the coastguard patrol boat.

TAKE NO ACTION
Customs and coastguard officials tonight said they would take no action against the crew of the British vessel, James B., which sank off the Long Island coast last night, after her stern had been cut off by the coastguard patrol boat, Calhoun.

Masquerades, Mirth and Music Mark Celebration Of Hallowe'en This Year

HALLOWEEN, the vigil of the Hallowmas or All Saints' Day, has come and gone. So many perfectly good gables and fences from a number of Victoria residences. While those citizens who chose to stay at home for Hallowe'en were being annoyed by tick-tacks, the sudden letting-off of firecrackers on their verandas, and the rapid fire of pea-shooters, the downtown sections were thrown into a scene of merriment. Girls masqueraded as boys, wearing big blue shell pants with the red bottoms, paraded the town declaring that the girls who carry the messages to 167 were certainly not the boys, as all after call came the old covered wagons were flying here and there, carrying loads of pleasure seekers, all out to make "whoopie" on the night of October 31.

Firecrackers of all sizes kept up an almost continual clatter from about 7 o'clock until just before midnight, when the tired and weary joy-makers made for home, carrying with them many fond memories of the Hallowe'en of 1929.

Fruit Growers Of Saanich to Hear Report

A joint meeting of the Saanich fruit growers will be held at the Women's Institute hall, Royal Oak, on the evening of November 25, at which a report will be presented on the marketing of the crop by the Government's market branch during the past season, and suggestions will be invited for 1930. Hon. William Atkinson, Minister of Agriculture, and departmental officers will attend.

SETTLEMENT AT HAGUE TO AID BRITAIN

Chancellor of Exchequer Claims Advantages Derived Will Be Worth Millions for Many Years

CABINET WORRIED ON MINES ISSUE

LONDON, Oct. 31.—Explanations of ministerial actions at The Hague conference on the Young plan, on the Government bill for previous extension and additional "do's" and of attempts to settle the coal problem, were given in the House of Commons today.

Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer, said that the Young plan, as adopted at The Hague, would provide Great Britain with sufficient German reparations to cover this country's debt payments to the United States. He added that the advantages of the Hague settlement could be approximately at about $100,000,000 yearly for thirty-seven years.

SMALL SET-OFF
There will, therefore, be a small set-off each year against the accumulated deficit between Great Britain's war debt receipts and the payments which she has already made.

In the current financial year, Mr. Snowden estimated, the Exchequer will receive about $615,920,000 on account of reparations and Allied war debts, while the amount payable to the United States is $690,690,000.

COAL QUESTION
William Graham, President of the Board of Trade, announced that he would have to postpone a statement which he had intended to make on the coal question as negotiations were still continuing. It was learned that the Government is running into difficulties on this problem, and that the mine owners consider the Government proposals so far-reaching that they have asked for further explanations.

The House of Commons passed the second reading of the Widows' and Orphans' Pension Bill without division.

Denies Canada No Longer Uses Gold Standard

OTTAWA, Oct. 31.—The Department of Finance today denied positively that Canada had departed from a gold standard. The denial was issued after the Department's attention was called to a dispatch from London quoting a newspaper as saying the Dominion was no longer on a gold monetary basis.

NOVA SCOTIA VOTERS BAN PROHIBITION

Plebiscite Results Show Large Majority Opposed to Continuance of Present Liquor System

MAJORITY IS NOW 28,000 AGAINST

Principle of Government Control Approved of by People—Temperance Reform Gains Day

[HALIFAX, Oct. 31.—In a plebiscite today on the liquor question, the number of Nova Scotia voters who expressed a preference for Government control and sale exceeded by more than 28,000 the number of those who indicated their desire that the present prohibition law be kept.

Both Dr. H. R. Grant, leader of the prohibition forces, and Mr. J. H. Winfield, heading the Government control campaign, interpreted the figures as indicative of the defeat of the prohibition law.

TWO QUESTIONS PUT
Two questions were before the voters but thousands voted on only one. The questions were whether the prohibition law, known as the Nova Scotia Temperance Act, should be continued or whether a system of Government sale should be set up.

With only forty-five small polls unheard from out of a total of 1,137, the figures were:
For the Temperance Act, 61,672; against, 36,024.
For Government control, 83,757; against, 41,180.

The vote will be interpreted officially by the Government. Premier E. N. Rhodes said he would wait for more complete information before making a statement.

Only Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island of the provinces of Canada now have prohibition laws.

CANNOT FIND NEW PREMIER FOR FRANCE

Government Situation Is Unequaled in French Political History—M. Clementel Has Failed

M. TARDIEU NEXT TO BE SENT FOR

PARIS, Oct. 31.—The task of attempting to form a Cabinet in succession to the Briand Government, which resigned October 23, will be undertaken by M. Andre Tardieu, who was French High Commissioner in the United States in the closing years of the World War.

M. Tardieu tonight accepted President Domergue's invitation to try to accomplish what two representatives of the Radicals failed to do.

The presidential invitation to M. Tardieu marks a drift in the parliamentary situation from the Left, as represented by the Radical Socialists under M. Edouard Daladier and Etienne Clementel toward the Right.

The successive failures of the two Radical Socialists to get a Cabinet that could command a sufficient majority of the Chamber of Deputies, has left the French political situation in a state of chaos that has seldom been equalled in the history of the French Republic.

Internal political manoeuvring alone is held responsible for this development.

M. Tardieu has been Minister of the Interior for the past eighteen months in the Cabinets of M. Briand and M. Raymond Poincare. The first move that M. Tardieu made after being invited to try to do the Right Centre what the Left Centre could not accomplish, was to call upon M. Briand. It was noted that both M. Daladier and M. Clementel visited the former Premier immediately after being requested to form a Cabinet, and observers are convinced that no matter how the present confusion is resolved, M. Briand will be back in his old post at the Foreign Ministry.

ready one of the troops has asked for the privilege of beautifying the grounds.

Members of the Victoria Kiwanis Club will render all personal assistance possible in the construction of the building, and already generous offers have been received from merchants and contractors in contributing necessary material for the erection of the structure.

KIWANIS OBJECTIVE

Earlier in the year the Kiwanis Club undertook as one of its objectives the securing of a permanent headquarters in Victoria for the Boy Scouts. This was very much needed as for years past the boys have been dependent on the owners of an old dwelling on Yates Street, which building has recently been demolished to make way for a new apartment house. As a result, the boys are without a headquarters and are meeting in basements and similar unsuitable places until they have a permanent meeting place of their own.

With the encouragement and support of the community...

officer in the nature of a massive bulldog took up his position at the intersection of Yates and Blanshard Streets around 9 o'clock. It was not a live dog, far from such, but a massive animal standing some six feet in height with a Union Jack draped around its neck, made for the better part of wood.

The arrival of a motorcycle officer resulted in the withdrawal of the bulldog from his position, and the fact that he once stood at the intersection is now history.

Two automobiles, not many for such a night, were reported stolen early in the evening, but before midnight they were located by the Victoria police department, much to the satisfaction of anxious owners, who apparently were a little dubious as to the outcome of Hallowe'en.

And so the night has come and gone, and Hallowe'en of 1929 is history.

The ready response by the City Council to this request and the generous financial support accorded the appeal of the Boy Scouts Association for funds by the citizens of the city has made it possible for an early start being made on the construction of the building.

PLANS FOR PROJECT
Plans for the new headquarters have been prepared by Kiwanis Edward Watkins and supervision of the building will be in the hands of Kiwanis William Luney.

The lot donated by the City Council is situated on the north side of Johnson Street between Vancouver and Cook Streets. Messrs. Atwell D. King, representing the Kiwanis Club, Guy M. Shaw, representing the Boy Scouts Association, and H. S. Pringle, city solicitor, are the trustees approved by the city council to hold the property in trust for the Boy Scouts.

While, as stated above, sufficient funds have been generously contributed by the citizens to make possible an early start on the building, yet further contributions will be necessary to furnish the building. Contributions may be made to Mr. H. T. Ravenhill, district commissioner of the Boy Scouts, Mr. Ernest H. Bird, honorary treasurer of the Boy Scouts committee, or to any member of the Kiwanis Club or the Boy Scouts Association.

Shawnigan Lake Lumber Company Acquires Area, With Option to Extend Holdings

WILL BE EASY FOR LOGGING

The Koksilah Watershed is to be penetrated by the logger's axe shortly, the Shawnigan Lake Lumber Company having acquired a square mile of timber in the Heimenken district, northwest of Shawnigan Lake. With this holding, which is convenient of access to the lake for logging operations, goes the option to purchase later good holdings in the same land district, capable of many years' operation at the present rate of production of the mill at Shawnigan.

The Koksilah River is crossed by the Canadian National grade to Cowichan Lake and some logging has been done close to the tracks, but no effort has hitherto been systematically undertaken to attack the fine stands of timber on the hillsides drained by the Koksilah and its tributaries.

One or two of the large Island companies have selected holdings on watercourses, but generally speaking very little land has hitherto been taken up within the Heimenken land district for actual operations. The vendors are the Esquimalt & Nanaimo Railway land department.

The proprietors of the Shawnigan mill have spent a considerable sum in recent years in improving their facilities, and the announcement will be welcome to Shawnigan Lake as an assurance of continued industrial activity.

PREPARING TO HAIL PREMIER ON RETURNING

Donald, planned for tomorrow morning when he debarks at this port on his return from his North American trip, has been curtailed in order to give the Prime Minister opportunity for an early return to Parliament.

The Duchess of York, bringing the head of the Government back from the New World, was to reach her anchorage in the Mersey at midnight. Tugs will bring her to the docks about 6 a.m. on Friday, but Mr. MacDonald is not expected to come ashore until after breakfast, two hours later.

A big popular demonstration is expected when he steps ashore. A short civic reception will follow, and then Mr. MacDonald will board a train for London. It was said tonight that he might even appear in Parliament on Friday evening.

Canada Stands Dominant In World Newsprint Output

Any doubt as to Canada's pre-eminence in the newsprint manufacturing field is immediately dispelled by an examination of statistics of world production for 1928. During that period, all countries produced 6,700,000 tons, of which Canada accounted for 2,381,000. In the matter of exports, Canada's position is even more dominant, accounting for 2,207,000 tons out of a total of 2,415,000.

Also it is interesting to note that though Canada leads the world in production and exports of newsprint, yet also it is a heavy consumer, standing sixth in this regard among the nations of the world.

Over the next few years, it is reasonable to expect that Canada will continue to increase its needs in the matter of production. At present, the spread between the capacity of Canadian newsprint mills and demand is lessening, and this fact, combined with the advent of several new machines within the next year, should make for increasing production.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

JUDGMENT IN SHARES ACTION IS RESERVED

County Court Suit of R. P.
Clark & Co., Ltd., Against
S. Robinson on C. & E.
Transaction Comes to End

WERE SHARES READY TO BE DELIVERED?

Judgment was reserved at the conclusion yesterday morning of the County Court before His Honor Judge Lampman, brought by R. P.
Clark & Company, Ltd., against S.
Robinson for $682 in payment for fifty-five Calgary & Edmonton Land Corporation, Limited, shares at $12 and interest. Mr. Carew Martin represented the plaintiff firm and Mr. C. H. O'Halloran and Mr. G. H. Sedger the defendant.

At the resumption yesterday Mr.
Carew Martin made an application to amend the claim for possible damages through breach of contract. The shares were bought at $12, and yesterday morning, it was stated by Mr. A. E. Fraser, manager of the stock department of R. P.
Clark & Company, they stood at $24.

Mr. Fraser, in the witness box, examined by Mr. Martin on this matter, agreed that there had been a tremendous collapse of stock prices within the last few days.
"You might term C. & E. a fluctuating stock," suggested counsel.
"Any stock listed on an exchange," said witness, "fluctuates quite widely."

"It hasn't had many 'ups' since May 14," asked the court.

"Not many," replied witness, "but it did go higher."

"It has been going down steadily since June 17," queried the court.

Witness replied in the affirmative.

Mr. O'Halloran, in addressing the court on what he termed the "explained delay" in notifying defendant that the share certificates had arrived, contended that the agreement was that plaintiff should sell defendant fifty-five C. & E. shares at $12, defendant to pay for them on the delivery of the certificates. The plaintiff, however, said that the shares were subject to "if and when issued," but defendant said that was not so, but that the share certificates should have been delivered to him within two weeks.

ON TWO POINTS

The contradiction, said counsel, rested on two points and there was no doubt but that the agreement arrived at between the parties was not the agreement set out in the buying order. Considerable argument ensued on the form of the buying order signed by defendant, counsel contending that the buying order had been discarded. Either it was, he said, an agreement between the parties or it was not, but if the order was to be relied upon, the plaintiff was held, out of court and had no cause of action.

Mr. O'Halloran said he would urge that Robinson's evidence was the more probable, as Mr. Fraser was very busy at the time, had many stocks on his mind, and there were many people coming in and going out of the office. In the circumstances he believed that defendant's recollection was more likely to be correct, and that it was more reasonable to accept his word.

Defendant, said counsel, had given his evidence in a straightforward and sincere way, particularly on the points as to why he had asked for early delivery, and it was significant that no deposit was received from defendant. The latter had also said that plaintiff was to send him a letter telling him when he would get his stock. Although defendant again called at the office on the matter he had heard nothing further.

Several authorities were put in by counsel to show that the question of reasonable time was always implied.

There was nothing plaintiff had done, he submitted, to show he had ever tendered the share certificates to defendant. Plaintiff said he had 235 C. & E. shares when defendant called at his office. If the fifty-five shares in question came out of the 235 the lapse of two and a half months before plaintiff did anything was naturally out of all reason.

There was nothing, said counsel, to show the instance of the Provincial Department of Agriculture, and with the co-operation of the Dominion department. Beets have been grown this summer on a number of farms in an experimental way and are now on their way to Ottawa for testing purposes.

The Board of Trade of Armstrong had been active in assisting in the work and Mr. Donald Stewart, president of that organization, and formerly a member of the Legislature of British Columbia, and Mr.
A. J. Fifer, secretary of the board, have rendered great assistance in furthering the plans in hand. The experiments have been carried out on unirrigated lands.

The Dominion department supplied free seed from two of the most popular varieties of sugar beets used. The Provincial Government in turn paid the express charges on this seed to the farmers. The seed was then distributed among different farmers, and during the season the representatives of the Department of Agriculture looked after the progress of the experimental work, including the cultivation, fertilization, etc. Various kinds of fertilizers were used, and a careful record has been kept of all plots that were devoted to the raising of the beets, so that there is on hand valuable information to be co-ordinated with the results obtained on the analysis to be made at Ottawa.

Some thirty-three different fields were used in the territory covered.
Last Monday, following the lifting of the beets, shipments were made to Ottawa, each location having its own marked sack. The Provincial Department of Agriculture took care of the shipping of these samples by express.

Dr. F. Shutt, of the Dominion Experimental Farm, is to report upon the results of the experiment, and will be valuable information to be used in connection with the reports upon beet growing for the districts taking in a large part of the Interior.

LEGION COUNCIL HOLDS SESSION

VICTORIA AND NORTH SAAN-
ICH CANADIAN LEGION
DELEGATES ATTEND

Vote of Thanks to Army and Navy Veterans Passed—Also to B.C. Government

At a meeting of the District Council of the Canadian Legion, attended by delegates from all Victoria branches and the North Saanich Branch, held last night at the clubrooms of Britannia Branch, a hearty vote of thanks was passed to the Army and Navy Veterans for endorsing the resolutions passed at the last Provincial and Dominion conventions of the Canadian Legion.

The published report of the provincial executive meeting of the Army and Navy Veterans, in Victoria recently, was read, and a check-up revealed the fact that all matters discussed by them had been brought to the attention of the respective governments by resolution of Canadian Legion conventions, either last year or at the beginning of this year.

This example of unity of thought and action created much satisfaction, and the vote of thanks to the Army and Navy Veterans' Association for their support and commendation resulted.

The stand being made by the provincial command of the legion to try and cause the Government to remove the maximum age of twenty-five years' clause in connection with certain classes of postal workers was endorsed.

A vote of thanks was accorded the Provincial Government for giving financial support to V.C.'s to enable them to attend the dinner in London.

Attention is being given to a request from the authorities at Resthaven, that the memorial erected there to the men who were drowned while S.C.R. patients in that institution be removed.

A committee was appointed to wait on the Jubilee Hospital board to see if it were possible for veterans to be placed in a special ward, instead of being distributed throughout the building, while undergoing treatment.

A university dramatic society intimated to Mr. Bernard Shaw that they would perform one of his plays if he would grant permission.

His reply was brief: "You can't,
but you may."

MAKING IT UNANIMOUS

Nova Scotia decided yesterday by a majority, which, when fully determined, seems certain to exceed two to one, that Liquor Control should replace the present system of prohibition enforcement that has been in effect in the province. It is an emphatic verdict that brings Nova Scotia into line in liquor legislation with all the provinces of the Dominion with the exception of Prince Edward Island. The chief conclusion to be deduced is that liquor control, as exercised in the several provinces, is recognized generally as a success, as a promoter of temperance and as an aid in combatting the evils of the liquor traffic. This is a tribute to the examples set by Quebec and British Columbia, which were the first two provinces in the Dominion to adopt liquor control. It is not only the policy, but the methods whereby it is being administered, that have gradually made a successful appeal to the common sense of the majority, and, indeed, one must say the great majority of the people of Canada.

Now that Nova Scotia has fallen into line the time should have come to promote official co-operation in the attitude that prevails towards the heavy taxes levied by the Federal Government on liquor imports. It may be those taxes are considered to be justified. They fall on the consumers in the various provinces where liquor control prevails. It is a question if they should not be reduced, or, if maintained as at present, if the various provincial administrations should not claim a share of that taxation, rendered possible through legislation over which they have the entire jurisdiction and all the responsibility.

POWER OF PERSONALITY

We do not know whether personality may be defined as an asset or an attribute; but there is no doubt that personality has a tremendous influence upon the public and private affairs of this world. We have been told that the personality of a preacher may determine the difference between success and failure in the pulpit and in the pastorate. We have heard people say that even a newspaper when it is destitute of personality cannot have much effect in "moulding public opinion."

But it is in public life that the effects of a strong, powerful and popular personality are most frequently manifest. Premier Ferguson, who has just won another great political victory in Ontario, owes his success as a leader largely to the fact that he dominates his party by the power of his strong personality. When confronted with a political or social problem, he does not stutter and stammer and declare that the problem must be submitted to the people for their judgment. He makes up his mind that a certain definite course is right. He acts upon the promptings of his judgment, and in every instance the Legislature and the people have endorsed his course. Mr. Ferguson's belief is that a leader should lead, not follow, public opinion.

Premier Tolmie of British Columbia is in many respects entirely different in type and temperament from Premier Ferguson. The personality and power of the Premier of Ontario is displayed in one way; the personality and power of the Premier of British Columbia in an entirely different way; but the influence of Dr. Tolmie is more subtle and is quite as strong as the influence of Mr. Ferguson. In the one case there is great drawing power, in the other great driving power. Mr. Ferguson tells the people what they must do; Dr. Tolmie suggests to the people what they should do, and in both cases the thing is done. As a result of the autocratic methods of Premier Ferguson, Ontario has been given good and honest government; as a result of the democratic methods of Dr. Tolmie, British Columbia has been given good and efficient government up to the present time, and will be given even better and more efficient government in the future.

When Premier Ferguson was called to power in Ontario he found the affairs of the Province in a state of confusion as a result of the reckless experiments in legislation and administration of a heterogeneous set of dreamers and incompetents. He has restored order out of chaos, and the people trust and believe in him. Dr. Tolmie found the affairs of this Province in a very similar state when he was called to power. He was given a delicate and difficult task, but he is gradually and surely doing for British Columbia what Premier Ferguson did for Ontario. If he perseveres in the course set, there is not the least doubt that when the time comes to submit his case to the people he will receive just as emphatic an endorsement as the people of Ontario have given Premier Ferguson. It was the power of the Doctor's personality that won the last election. The power of his personality and the record at the back of it should win many more elections.

SERVED THEM RIGHT

Three newspaper reporters in the City of Washington, D.C., where the United States Government sits and administers the affairs of the nation and the Congress meets and passes the laws for the police and the courts to enforce when they can—three newspaper reporters in the said City of Washington, D.C., we repeat for the sake of clarity, have been sentenced to terms in jail for contempt of court, contempt of Government, or contempt of Congress. The dispatch is not very clear as to the nature of the reportorial offence. But the boys are in confinement.

There are several points of interest to newspaper men, and possibly to ordinary men, in the extraordinary case of the Washington Journalistic culprits. The first revealed point of interest is that Washington, D.C., has not been given the right of municipal self-government. The affairs of the national capital are administered by the national Government. The national Government is disposed to point with pride to the efficient manner in which it enforces the laws in the capital. The national Government is said to be particularly proud of the fact that it has efficiently enforced the provisions of the prohibition law in Washington. It has pat itself affectionately on the back and told itself in confidence that strong drink, colloquially known as "liquor," is unprocurable in Washington, unprocurable even by Senators and Congressmen, notwithstanding the tremendous influence at the command of the said Senators and Congressmen.

The second revealed point is that the newspaper reporters wrote something for their newspapers that everybody except the President and his Government knew to be true. The reporters stated that good brands of whisky and fair brands of gin could be procured at any time of the day and night in Washington without any difficulty—and they proved their statement by naming the places at which Congressmen and common people procured their "medicine." The bold but unfortunate reporters seem to have been explicit enough in their statements; but the facts stated were not plain enough for understanding and action upon the part of the police. The police were not interested in the places where "liquor" was procurable in defiance of the law. It is their business to enforce. The police were too busy to be caught in such a trap. So they demanded to be told of the source of the information which enabled the reporters to obtain liquor of fair quality in any quantity. The reporters claim that professional ethics and custom would not permit them to tell. So they were sent into confinement if not into jail, and Washington is officially dry, although it is actually as wet as any other city in the country, not even excepting New York or Chicago.

Our learned friend, Mr. G. G. McGeer, K.C., etc., seems actually to know as much about the business of operating railways as our pushful friend, Mr. T. D. Pattullo, thinks he knows about the business of conducting the affairs of this province. Mr. McGeer has been telling the newspapers of Vancouver about his success in securing the reduction of railway rates and that in every case where railway rates were reduced the business and profits of the railways were substantially increased. Now the managers of our great railways will know what to do to insure abounding and permanent prosperity for their lines, a matter about which they may have been worrying just a little of late.

The opposition in the new Legislature of Ontario will be composed largely of independents; but the Ferguson Government will be completely independent of the independents. Which is a good thing for both the Province and the Government.

WOMEN AND FOOD

Long ago Thackeray complained that, while England produces the best meat in the world, the meat which we eat in France tastes better. We understand that the Mayor of Bath seconds the motion. His city is entertaining the Federation of Meat Traders, and he welcomed them with a passionate protest against our cooks. What is it that baffles the butcher and wrings his tender heart? "The deplorable performance which passes in this country under the name of cooking." His Worship, following ancient and honorable precedent, puts all the blame on the women. The old familiar charge that a woman, when there is no one else in the kitchen, will dine on an egg was made again. Old as it is, it is still damning. What man could on his honor acquit the sex? The crime may lean to virtue's side. It may be a crime of self-denial, of frugality, of the higher life, of any unlovely merit you please; but it is a crime typical and characteristic of woman that when she has only herself to cater for that women, as a species, do not properly respect food. For the sake of men they will take infinite pains and acquire exquisite skill. Their defect is that they do not eat themselves. Until a decent human love of good living is common to the sex we can have no complete confidence in them. The adequate cook, the satisfactory wife, will still be exceptions—London Daily Telegraph.

AID FOR BLIND HISTORY TOLD

Western Association Was Founded in 1913 and Has Achieved a Work Unique in North America

SALARIES ARE HALF AMOUNT OF GRANTS

In view of the campaign to raise the sum of $50,000 for the blind of British Columbia as Victoria's quota in the building of a properly equipped institute in Vancouver, it will be interesting to review the past history of the work of this province which has led up to the drive.

The Western Association of the Blind was founded in 1913 by a few blind persons of Vancouver and a number of sighted friends. The aim of the association was to do for the blind of this province, and the need of an organization of the blind was very great. The association had great difficulty in existing at all. Nevertheless, it achieved one of the greatest accomplishments that any organization could expect to achieve in such a short time. A school for blind children was established on Melville Street, under the care of Mrs. T. Burke, who gave her home for the purpose. Later, the Vancouver School Board took charge of the school for the blind, and in 1922 the Provincial Government amalgamated it with the deaf school in Point Grey. Until 1918 there had been no school for the blind in Canada west of Toronto, and British Columbia had been sending all blind children to Eastern schools. A few years ago, when radio came into our homes, the Western Association, with the aid of several other organizations, among whom was the Pike Lodge, put on a drive for funds for the purpose of buying and installing radios in the homes of many of the blind of this province. At present the Association is establishing a knitting class for blind women. Formerly there had been very little done for blind women in this province, and we are glad to note that the class is making splendid progress under the supervision of a sightless expert hand machine knitting teacher. The Western Association has always had great difficulty in financing all its undertakings. Although it has a provincial charter, it does not receive a Government grant or allowance, and its funds have been kept up by public generosity through tag days and donations. When we stop to consider the problems which the Government has had to cope with, we realize that it has achieved a work for the blind quite as great as any organization of the kind in North America.

The Canadian National Institute for the Blind is an organization of business men. The members on the board of directors are chosen by the institute, long from prominent business men. There are only one or two blind persons on the board, and these are almost strangers to the institute. The institute has a very little time to study the situation of the blind, and the organization is running of affairs to the salaries of officials. The branch of the institute in British Columbia, which terms itself the Western Division, receives Government grants both from the province and Alberta amounting to a sum of between $25,000 and $40,000 per annum. The institute employs about twenty-five civilian blind persons and almost half that number of sighted persons to direct the work of the blind. The total amount of the salaries of the officials of the institute is at least half the sum of the grants, and many of the officials' salaries are double that of any one civilian blind employee.

HERE FROM BALKAN STATE OF BULGARIA

Superintendent of Mission in Southern Part of Kingdom Speaks on Little-Known Land

A country which is trying to return to agriculture after the trials of several wars, revolutions, and civil disturbances, Bulgaria is wrestling with problems of the most serious kind. The country is a land of troubled experiences of the Balkan States. Rev. T. T. Holway, a superintendent of evangelistic work for the American Congregational mission, has arrived here on furlough from Philippopolis, the second largest city.

Mr. Holway has come here with his mother, Mrs. W. B. Thompson, of Duncan, and they are registered at the Strathcona Hotel.

Mr. Holway was formerly engaged in teaching at the college in connection with the mission which is shortly to be housed in large modern buildings in Sofia. The country after three harvests which were either indifferent in production or abundant when prices of commodities were low, is endeavoring to rally, the chief crops being tobacco, wheat, barley, grapes, sugar beets and green vegetables, with a certain amount of maize. Attar of roses is also an important product of the country. Mr. Holway's superintendency lies in the tobacco country, which supplies a large quantity of the demands of Central Europe and a certain amount also finds its way to Western Europe.

He says that the adjustments secured under the reparations plan may help to restore the economic life of Bulgaria. Of the young King Boris, who has crowded into his life more adventures than would fill a novel of Anthony Hope, Mr. Holway says he is genuinely popular and the people are as interested in his matrimonial plans as much as the British would be in those of the Prince of Wales.

Jots From Geography

FINGAL'S CAVE on the island of Staffa, just off the coast of Scotland, is the peculiar result of one of nature's volcanic disturbances. Huge basaltic columns lead to the cavern. Travelers often have commented on the ceaseless tones crooned by the whispering of the waters of the Atlantic far within the recesses of the cave.

TO CONSIDER STATE RULERS OF INDIA

Simon Commission Recommends That Conference of Rulers and Government Should Be Held

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The India Office late last night made public a conference of rulers and government which would be held in London early next year to determine the relations between British India and the native states.

Sir John Simon, who led a commission to India this year to investigate the possibility of establishing some form of Dominion Government as demanded by Indian Nationalists, wrote to Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald on October 16 announcing he hoped to present the report of the commission early in 1930.

He said the commission, in the course of its investigation, became increasingly impressed with the importance in any constitutional change of considering also the relations between British India and the Indian States. He therefore suggested the wisdom of consulting these semi-independent states, and for that purpose advocated calling a conference in London to include representatives of the Indian States to seek the greatest possible measure of agreement for final proposals which the Government would submit to Parliament.

The Prime Minister, in his reply, dated October 25, gave full approval to these suggestions and states that as soon as the Simon Commission had had time to consider the matter fully, such a conference would be called.

The Wintering Partners of Peace River, from the Earliest Records to the Present, with a summary of the Dunvegan Journal, 1806, written by J. N. Wallace, and published at Ottawa by Thorburn & Abbott, has been reviewed by Father Morice as follows: "The author is evidently quite conversant with every phase of his subject, and has tracked and identified his heroes as well as their places of residence, has followed them in their trips, controlled and duly corrected the distances they recorded, and made them plain again, for the benefit of our mental screen, the animated life which they passed in the Peace River country."

Miss Emily Carr, a well-known Victoria artist, had contributed an article to the McGill News Supplement of June, 1929, entitled "Modern and Indian Art of the West Coast," which Miss Russell in her report defined as "outlining a typically Canadian field of art in the West."

"The Beaver" magazine of June, 1929, contained a brief article by P. S. Garner entitled "A Description of a Boat Trip from Vancouver to Alaska." In the same number of The Beaver, the editor, Mr. Robert Watson, had an interesting story of the life of the founder of Fort Yukon, Alexander Hunter.

Judge Howay had published in the Oregon Historical Quarterly of June this year the "Voyage of Kendrick and Gray in 1787-90," being notes on the voyage of the first American vessels to circumnavigate the globe.

Miss Nellie Pipes, of the Oregon Historical Library, had in the same number of the Oregon Historical Quarterly, an article entitled "Later Affairs of Kendrick," which furnished interesting details on the history of this early navigator. A. M. Stephen's novel, "The Gleaming Archway" (Dent's, Toronto), had for setting the secluded valleys of British Columbia, the logging camps and the crowded streets on the waterfront of Canada's gateway to the Orient. Reviewers had referred to this as having "rapid action and deft characterization which holds the reader's interest to the end."

Other books mentioned in the report was Mrs. Nelda Mackinnon Sage's little volume of verse, "Top of the World" (Dent, Toronto and London), which aimed at capturing the charm and wonder of the view from a certain house on a mountain, overlooking the harbor of Vancouver; and one by Mr. Alex. Phillips, of Alta Lake Lodge, whose "The Painted Cliff," has a British Columbia background.

Blaze Destroys Prince of Wales' Old Ranch House

CALGARY, Oct. 31.—Fire destroyed the old ranch house on the Prince of Wales ranch at Pekin last Sunday, the damage totaling about $2,000, according to word which reached Calgary on Thursday. The new building with its contents, valued at $25,000, was untouched, but was saved only by quick work of the ranch employees who, hitching a team of horses to a shed between the new and the old houses, raked it out of the way. A new fall of snow on the roof of the new house prevented the spread of fire from sparks.

The water and lighting system on the ranch was put completely out of order.

AUTHORS USE B.C. MATERIAL

REPORT OF BIBLIOGRAPHY COMMITTEE OF HISTORICAL SOCIETY IS INTERESTING

Western Setting Grows Popular With Writers of Fiction and History

Authors are turning their attention more and more to British Columbia for the source of historical and romantic material for books and magazine articles. One of the most distant observers is the Government of Sydney, which last year in a "Bibliography of Captain James Cook," comes into direct touch with this part of the world by referring to that part of the great navigator's life spent off Vancouver Island. The bibliography comprises a list of the books, manuscripts, charts, portraits, medals, etc., shown in the exhibition in New South Wales in commemoration of the bicentenary of Captain Cook's birth, and the 150th anniversary of his discovery of the Hawaiian Islands.

In review of the work in the Canadian Historical Review, Judge F. W. Howay, one of British Columbia's most distinguished historians, expresses regret that some effort had not been made to include in a separate section, the Cook material known to exist outside the contributing libraries, which included the Mitchell Library, the National Library, the National Art Gallery, the Australian Pioneer's Club, and other public and private repositories. The volume, then, he maintains, would have been a more complete bibliography and of more use to libraries in general.

Other books and material concerning British Columbia published during the past year were mentioned by Miss Russell in a report which she has just prepared for the British Columbia Historical Society. The journal, a narrative of the commercial expedition of James Strang from Bombay to the Northwest coast of America was printed at Madras by the Government Press. This is a valuable addition to the history of the West Coast, particularly the Nootka Sound region, and is largely due to the interest of the provincial librarian, Mr. John Hoole, who, wishing to know more of James Strang's history, wrote to the Governor of Madras to inquire if the journal were still in existence, with the result that the Government printed the journal, which was in their possession, and sent Mr. Hoole a copy.

Lukin Johnston's "Beyond the Rockies" (J. M. Dent & Sons, London) was mentioned as the work of one who was for some years associated with Victoria and Vancouver newspapers. Reviewers while commenting on the easy and fluent style had criticized the work for its want of cohesion and certain historical errors.

BIG FEATURES FOR ROTARY'S ICE CARNIVAL

Mr. T. P. McConnell Says Programme Will Be Fifty Per Cent Better Than at the 1928 Show

MAYOR DONATES BOX TO OLD MEN

"The programme for the Rotary Club's grand ice carnival at the Willows Arena on Saturday, November 9, has been completed, and I can assure you that it will be 50 per cent better than last year," said Mr. T. P. McConnell at yesterday's meeting of the Rotary organization, held in the Empress Hotel grill-room. All we need to make the show a huge success is assurance that there will be a capacity house.

The speaker said it was expected that many of the patrons would take part in the fancy dress carnival on the ice, which will conclude the evening's entertainment. The club was giving more and better prizes for the event. He announced that exchange tickets for the carnival would be handed at the box office, which will open at 8 a.m. next Monday at the carnival headquarters on Fort Street.

PAGEANT OF NATIONS

Mr. Frank L. Doherty said the club had accepted the offer of the Victoria Skating Club to put on the "Pageant of All Nations," which will open the carnival programme. The act will be staged under the direction of Mr. Frank Allwood.

Two boxes were raffled among the members at 50 cents a ticket. Vice-President P. L. Nalmsmith was the holder of the ticket which secured the first box. He said he would not be in the city for the event, and turned the box back for raffling at the next meeting.

Mayor Herbert Anson, winner of the other box, immediately donated it to the Old Men's Home.

Mr. Robert O. Lamb, of Jeeves & Lamb Auto Transfer Company, gave a classification talk, in which he spoke on long distance hauling home moving and storage.

Man Who Stole Coats Gets Two Months

Pleading guilty in the city police court yesterday to the theft of five white coats from the Central Creameries Wednesday morning, James Murray was sentenced to two months with hard labor by Magistrate Jay.

The court was informed that the accused apparently walked into the creamery premises during business hours and walked out with the bundle of laundered jackets, provided for the use of employees, unchallenged.

Murray said he had no knowledge of the offence, but as he was under the influence of liquor at the time, could not deny the charge.

The purchaser assured the police that at the time of the purchase he had no knowledge that the contents of the bundle he bought from the accused consisted of white coats.

HUDSON'S BAY GROCETERIA OPENS TODAY

In Line With Policy of Supplying Modern Store Service, Big Store Starts Innovation

MANAGER SAYS BEST IN WESTERN CANADA

Keeping up with the latest developments in department store management, Mr. A. J. Watson, local manager of the Hudson's Bay store, announces the opening at 9 o'clock this morning of a modern groceteria, excelling anything of a like kind in Western Canada. The new department is located in the basement section of the building and occupies 3,000 square feet of floor space, with the most up-to-the-minute fittings and fixtures for the display of goods and the convenience of patrons. Surrounding the hardwood stands on which the merchandise is set out, is a spacious, well-lighted area for the movement of customers. Each individual article will have the price marked on it, and no guesswork will be necessary to ascertain its value. A feature of the new department is a refrigerator in which bacon, wrapped in pound packages, butter and cheese, dried up in the same weight bundles; mince-meat and other materials requiring refrigeration are available to the intending purchaser or opening the door of the section in which the desired article is seen behind glass. In this refrigerator the various articles are kept in perfect condition at all times. An air of cleanliness pervades the entire section devoted to this innovation, which will be maintained under ideal sanitary conditions. Covering the floor there is a tile design of a special quality marble imported from England, enabling it to be easily cleaned.

On entering through the turnstiles, canvas baskets are available for the customer, and after securing what is desired those selected are checked by girls at counters and wrapped up, when, if the patron desires to have the purchases delivered, attendants will take the name and address, and the parcel or parcels will be forwarded by special delivery on the payment of a small charge. This department is in charge of Mr. McGuire.

In opening the groceteria, the management of the Hudson's Bay store does not intend to curtail the service grocery department in any way. The goods will be carried on as usual. In the meat and delicatessen department, increase of business has made it necessary to enlarge the counter space and refrigerator facilities, the former being enlarged one-third and the latter double what it was a short time ago.

Coal Shipped To Ottawa for Official Test

The first car load of coal to go to Ottawa for testing purposes in the new laboratory of the Federal Department of Mines is being assembled at Princeton, jointly by the Tulameen Coal Mines, Limited, and the Pleasant Valley Coal Company, Limited.

Hon. W. A. McKenzie, Minister of Mines, has asked the companies to prepare a car of coal with a capacity of forty tons, for shipment as soon as possible. The companies have consented, and it is hoped that the car will be on its way East not later than next week. This coal will be subjected to a thorough test by Ottawa technical experts, and information of economic value to coal mine operators of the Nicola-Princeton field is expected to be obtained.

Under arrangements made by Mr. McKenzie, a car of coal will be shipped each month from now on until samples have been dispatched from each of the active coal-producing fields of the province.

MOTOR CRASH INQUEST SET

Coroner E. C. Hart Will Investigate Circumstances Surrounding Death of James Askey

BOY ON CYCLE STRUCK BY CAR

An inquest into the death of James Askey, fourteen, cyclist messenger for the Canadian National Telegraphs, who died in the Jubilee Hospital yesterday afternoon about 2:30 o'clock, after being knocked down by a car on Dallas Road at 10:30 o'clock in the morning, will be held at 4 o'clock this afternoon by Dr. E. C. Hart, the coroner, at Thompson's Funeral Home, Quadra Street.

The lad was returning from a call at G. H. Snow, Limited, Pier "A," Ogden Point, and was cycling out of the gates when he was hit by a delivery wagon operated by G. D. Gibney. He was rushed to the Jubilee Hospital, and attended by Dr. R. L. Miller. The injuries included a bad fracture of the skull and numerous body bruises.

Knocked unconscious almost immediately, the lad died without regaining consciousness.

John Askey, his father, and his four brothers, Fred, William, George and Gurfurd, were at his bedside when he breathed his last at the hospital.

"Jimmie," as he was known by his many friends, was one of the most popular messengers employed by the Canadian National Telegraphs, where he had been employed for the past year. Always wearing a smile, and ever ready to do a good turn, his sudden demise is greatly felt by the hundreds who have had the pleasure of coming into contact with him.

While fireworks, firecrackers, whizzbangs and traditional youthful pranks marked the outdoor celebration of Halloween, a party of city to two hundred guests made merry in the ballroom of the Empress Hotel at the Halloween cabaret dance. The setting was most picturesque. Guests entered the ballroom through a witch's hut, a gloomy, black-walled den, cheered by a glowing fire in a tidy hearth, beside which the tenant's broom stood on the one side and a sheeted ghost on the other. On the roof perched a monstrous black cat, blinking, ogreish eyes across the hall as the guests of other cats ranged along the wall behind the orchestra, which was encased in a witch's garden with lighted pumpkin faces at the gateway. Hobgoblins of every kind danced across the walls of the ballroom, and the Halloween effect was heightened from the lights being enclosed in tasseled balloons of striped orange and black, with cat-faces grinning from the fringe concealing the wall lights.

The Empress twelve-piece orchestra furnished a lively programme of dance numbers, interspersed among which were several cabaret turns furnished by the Lopez sisters and Reon Donby. Their soft-shoe dances were particularly clever and won much applause during the supper hour, from 10 to 11:30, when a special menu was served. The entertainment continued until 1 o'clock.

Among those who had parties were Mrs. Forbes Wilson, Mr. W. Irwin, Mrs. Rutherford, Dr. Hunter, Mr. W. H. Gropp, Mr. and Mrs. Angus Campbell, Mr. Balcorn, Mr. Pattison, Mr. J. Bessonet, Mr. Art. Scott, Mr. A. Wills, Mr. George Strath, Miss Anna McBride, Mr. Harold Wilson, Mr. F. Donby, Mr. J. Fletcher, Mr. W. Bell, Mr. J. Taylor, Mrs. Culman, Mr. Wright, Mr. Diespecker, Mr. P. M. Preston, Mr. McGarvey, Mr. McDowell, Major Engle, Mrs. Applon, Mrs. M. and O. Applon, Mr. Slade, Mr. Rayment, Mr. Barkley, Mr. Read, Mr. Bromley, Mr. G. Warren, the Misses Gray, Mr. M. Bain, Mr. Gilbert, Miss Inez Ker, Miss Patsy Hemling, Miss Nora Clark, Lieutenant DeWolfe, Dr. Green, Mr. Kelly Hemling, Miss Helen Wilson, Mr. J. Berkley and Mr. A. Fell.

New Serial Story, "Rhoda," Will Begin on Saturday

THE first installment of a lively novel, full of incident, will appear in tomorrow's issue of The Colonist. The heroine had changed her name and hidden her identity after her father's death because of an undesired disgrace which had fallen upon him, and because she wished to separate herself entirely from her old world. Just when she felt safe there came the menace of whispers and efforts to spy out her new place of residence. She felt trapped. The story tells what followed, and the denouement. Incidentally, there is, of course, a hero.

HANDY GUIDE AT HUNDRETH ISSUE

November Number of "Clarke's Handy Guide to Victoria" Is Out—Includes Time Tables

"Clarke's Handy Guide to Victoria" reaches its one hundredth issue with the publication of its November number, having run the century of months since its inception nine years ago. The little magazine was introduced in part to supply the public with a condensed and reliable time table of the various stage services operating in and out of Victoria and has become a familiar and recognized guide to points of interest and a compendium of information, not only to tourists seeking to know the exact places of interest, but to local residents in and around the city who desire to have exact information concerning every variety of transportation from the south end of the island, and shipping arrivals and departures.

For some years the "Handy Guide" has been a popular handbook of general information, including apartment houses, British Columbia motor vehicles regulations, banks, public libraries, churches, forthcoming events, game regulations, tourist agencies, stores, and hotels, places of interest, postal information, railway and steamship schedules, street car routes, and other items included in the guide each month are five maps of Victoria District, Victoria Central, Saanich Peninsula, Georgian Circuit and Island Highway Scenic Drive.

Since the inception of the Vancouver Island Coach Lines system, the company has made the "Handy Guide" the official timetable for its various schedules.

Convenient in make-up, this monthly publication, easily placed in the vest pocket, has come into general use by police departments, tourist agencies, stores, and the general public. A total of 400 yearly subscribers receive the little magazine monthly by mail; and the general issue of 2,000 reaches the public the first day of each month.

"Clarke's Handy Guide," while not the only periodical of its kind issued for the public of South Vancouver Island, has been easily able to hold its central position during the nine years of its monthly publication.

The publishers of "Clarke's Handy Guide," Messrs. Clarke Printing Company, Limited, have appreciated the splendid support given their efforts to produce this little book of facts about Victoria, and on the occasion of the one hundredth issue announce that every care will be taken in the future as in the past to secure and print the correct data so essential in the make-up of a handy guide. The publishers have recently been able to secure the services of one of Victoria's well known young executives, Mr. A. L. Oakley, formerly with Gordon's, and subsequently accountant with Macey-Abell, and honorary executive secretary of the Victoria City Temple, as the official representative of "Clarke's Handy Guide" and sales manager for the company.

ACCIDENTAL DEATH JURY'S VERDICT IN LOGGING FATALITY

"Accidental death" was the verdict returned by a coroner's jury investigating into the circumstances surrounding the demise of O. Stankewicz, a logging bucker employed by Cathels & Sorenson at Port Renfrew, on Wednesday afternoon. The inquest was held at Sands Funeral Parlors with the coroner, Dr. E. C. Hart, presiding.

Provincial Police reports state Stankewicz was a member of a contract gang of four, two fallers and two buckers, working some distance in the bush from the Cathels & Sorenson mill. The deceased is reported to have cut through a log and in so doing released another big timber, which rolled on him without warning and crushed him to death.

The neat little evening pouch is fashioned of an imported metallic material and comes in several interesting colors which harmonize with party frocks. It has the advantage of being small yet is sufficiently roomy to carry all the appurtenances and aids to beauty required for evening use.

Manitoba Commissioner Predicts Industrialized Middle West Water Powers Developing

WINNIPEG HOPES FOR NEW GROWTH

TORONTO, Oct. 31.—Business interests of the East have been hearing the voice of a prophet whose message bristles with references to buying power and water power which will produce thousands of horsepower. He forecasts the arrival of a new Canadian Northwest, but, contrary to the custom of some of the best-known prophets, does not believe that he has been crying in the wilderness.

His vision is that of an industrialized Middle West, due to a process of change which, he says, has already begun and which will eventually alter the Western outlook economically and, incidentally, politically. The prophet is Mr. J. M. Davidson, secretary-treasurer of Manitoba's industrial board, but also concerned, in a broad way, with the manufacturing future of Saskatchewan and Alberta as well.

The prospect, as Mr. Davidson outlines it, is fraught with much interest, not only for any Canadian business man, but for anyone dealing with Canadian business men. Mr. Davidson's specific mission in the East was to interview manufacturers with the idea of inducing them to look into the Western field as a suitable sector for new branches. He is a believer in decentralization and thinks the time is past when, in a great many of our industries, one plant will manufacture for the needs of the nine provinces. This is not a view which receives anything like unanimous assent, but it is one in which Mr. Davidson is supported by many Government authorities in the West and by the prairie's business leaders.

Development of Manitoba's northern mineral areas will bring about a growth in the southern section similar to the happening in Ontario after this province's mines went into production.

At this point, Mr. Davidson interjects a somewhat startling statement. He declares that Winnipeg will double its population within the next decade. Six years, in fact, is his estimate of the time required. The growth, moreover, won't hinge on good crops, though these could contribute to it.

"For each additional 1,000 horsepower of electric energy developed from water power now unused," he says, "315 people are added to the industrial payroll and 1,925 persons to the population."

He adds that these are proven and accepted figures. Then he notes that five million horsepower is available. Finally, he comes to the development noted under way, 25,000 horsepower at Seven Sisters and an addition of 90,000 horsepower to the city plant as well as new undertakings by British and Dominion Power among others.

On these, he bases his hopes of a double-size Winnipeg.

"This buying power of the mining areas has jumped sixty millions in the last five years," he quotes. "Our 1928 production figures show an increase of thirty millions and an output of 159 millions."

"Last year, Winnipeg's average for new industries was 15 per cent higher than the figures for fifteen American centres which we investigated."

These statistics, the Manitoba official offers as evidence of the change which is coming over the entire West. He thinks a considerable degree of industrialization to be a certainty and he thinks that it should be done by Canadians. What is more, that what has now been done is largely Canadian effort. Mr. Davidson states that 75 per cent of the new industries for 1928 were Canadian and 50 per cent were Western organizations.

Mr. Davidson may be optimistic, as is the habit of Westerners and a habit which has often been productive of excellent results. But he only came East after he had harvested and threshed a bumper crop of statistics. His message of a new variety of Canadian West, he offers partially as an invitation and partially as a warning. He foresees a date not very far distant when wheat will place a hard battle to hold first place among midwestern products.

France to Erect Memorial Statue To Marshal Haig

PARIS, Oct. 31.—Excellent progress is being made in collecting in France the funds for an equestrian statue of Field-Marshal Earl Haig, which is to be erected at Montreuil-sur-Mer, the G.H.Q. of the British armies in France from 1916 onwards. It is intended that this shall be a statue not only in memory of Lord Haig, but also a symbol of gratitude to the British Army. A committee was formed some months ago with M. Pelletier—to whom the initiation of the idea is largely due—as honorary secretary. M. Pelletier for some months past, at the request of the sculptor, M. Landowsky, has been collecting photographs of the late Commander-in-Chief, not only as he was during the war, but in the early part of his career. Before any final decision is made with regard to the design, M. Pelletier is consulting with Lady Haig.

INTERNATIONAL COMMISSION IS DESCRIBED

Consists of Six Members, Three From Canada and Three From United States—Is Traveling Board

MAY BE PRECEDENT FOR OTHER LANDS

By THOMAS WAYLON
(Copyright by Star Newspaper Service)
OTTAWA, Oct. 31.—The Rush-Bagot Treaty of 1817 and the International Joint Commission of 1909 as exemplars for the world to follow on the road to peace, make a very definite contribution to the cause of disarmament and arbitration. In the opinion of diplomats and students of international affairs in Ottawa.

Mr. William Phillips, United States Minister to Canada, at Ottawa, said: "In my opinion the International Joint Commission is one of the most useful international institutions to be conceived between two adjoining countries. It has certainly done wonderful things in the settlement of our border problems. Twenty-six very difficult problems have been dealt with since its inception and all have been disposed of in the most amicable way."

Premier Briand of France, speaking at Strasbourg last November paid tribute to the Canada-United States International Joint Commission. France and Germany have suffered more than any other nations' over boundary disputes and when referring to the evacuation of the Ruhr Mr. Briand suggested, according to "The Frankfurter Zeitung": "A commission of conciliation deal with Rhineland matters in the event of the evacuation of that area by France," and he added "such a commission functions between Canada and the United States with the best results."

Hon. Jean Knight, French Minister to Canada, said that Mr. Briand learned about the Canada-United States commission from Mr. Mackenzie King. When the Canadian Prime Minister was in Paris to the Kellogg multilateral treaty for the outlawry of war he had some conversations with Mr. Briand, during the course of which he told the French statesman how well the commission had functioned. Mr. Briand was so much impressed that he made the suggestion at Strasbourg a few weeks later.

NO DISCORDANT NOTE
Mr. Knight was much impressed by the International Joint Commission and particularly by the fact that the commission's decisions so far had been unanimous. "All these international questions were considered from a business point of view and so were easier to settle than if they had been considered from a political point of view," said Mr. Knight. "This indicates what is possible when business methods are used in such cases." The minister referred to the great success of the commission in its work. He believed it provided a good example for other nations to follow. It was hardly a procedure in the question of disarmament but rather in the matter of the settlement of disputes. The Rush-Bagot treaty between Canada and the United States may be quoted at the five-power conference to be held in London next year, but the International Joint Commission is a precedent of use rather in connection with relations as between two countries. One eminent diplomat thought that it would be an excellent example for France and Germany to follow. It was his belief that the commission was the best operative for adjoining countries.

The commission consists of six members, three from each country and one international authority said that the secret of its success was that it actually went to the scene of the dispute. There was the case of the Trail smelter, whose fumes spread south across the border and wiped out the vegetation on the American side so that nothing would grow. The commission went down there, held hearings, saw the damage and was able to get first hand knowledge of the situation. "It would have taken years to accomplish all that by diplomatic conference," said Mr. Knight. The United States has a number of commissions operating. There is the Bryan peace pact with the South American countries, which has, for instance, one member from Brazil, one from the United States and a third who is neutral. Senator Dandurand, of Canada, was asked to be the neutral. There is the most important treaty of arbitration and conciliation between the United States and Germany, on which John W. Diefes, a noted Canadian editor, is the neutral member.

WOULD BE CUMBERSOME
Should international commissions like that of Canada and the United States be set up between nations generally, the question would arise as to whether one national commission should operate in each country negotiating with every other country, or whether there would be a separate commission with every country, as a Canada-United States commission, another Canada-France, another Canada-Germany and so forth. Such a multiplicity of commissions in each country would be cumbersome. There were fifty-two countries signing the Kellogg multilateral treaty. The Canada-United States commission, while primarily for the settlement of boundary disputes, may deal with any matter referred to it by the two governments. It may make findings or merely recommendations. It may direct remedies. In all its cases, however, it has so far been successful in arriving at common ground where all the commissioners, both Canadian and American, were unanimous.

INTERNATIONAL COMMISSION IS DESCRIBED

Consists of Six Members. Three From Canada and Three From United States—Is Traveling Board

MAY BE PRECEDENT FOR OTHER LANDS

By THOMAS WAYLING
(Copyright by Star Newspaper Service)
OTTAWA, Oct. 31.—The Rush-Bagot Treaty of 1817 and the International Joint Commission of 1909 as exemplars for the world to follow on the road to peace, make a very definite contribution to the cause of disarmament and arbitration, in the opinion of diplomats and students of international affairs in Ottawa.

Mr. William Phillips, United States Minister to Canada, at Ottawa, said: "In my opinion the International Joint Commission is one of the most useful international instruments to be conceived between two adjoining countries. It has certainly done wonderful things in the settlement of our border problems. Twenty-six very difficult problems have been dealt with since its inception and all have been disposed of in the most amiable way."

Premier Briand of France, speaking at Strasbourg last November paid tribute to the Canada-United States International Joint Commission. France and Germany have suffered more than any other nations' over boundary disputes and when referring to the evacuation of the Ruhr Mr. Briand suggested according to The Frankfurter Zeitung:

"A commission of conciliation deal with Rhine land matters in the event of the evacuation of that area by France," and he added "such a commission functions between Canada and the United States with the best results."

Hon. Jean Knight, French Minister to Canada, said that Mr. Briand learned about the Canada-United States commission from Mr. Mackenzie King. When the Canadian Prime Minister was in Paris to sign the Kellogg multilateral treaty for the outlawry of war he had some conversations with Mr. Briand, during the course of which he told the French statesman how well the commission had functioned. Mr. Briand was so much impressed that he made the suggestion at Strasbourg a few weeks later.

Mr. Knight was much impressed by the International Joint Commission and particularly by the fact that the commission's decisions so far had been unanimous. "All these international questions were considered from a business point of view and so were easier to settle than if they had been considered from a political point of view," said Mr. Knight. "This indicates what is possible when business methods are used in such cases." The minister referred to the great success of the commission in its work. He believed it provided a good example for other nations to follow. It was hardly a procedure in the question of disarmament but rather in the matter of the settlement of disputes.

The Rush-Bagot treaty between Canada and the United States was quoted at the five-power conference to be held in London next year, but the International Joint Commission is a precedent of the rather in connection with relations as between two countries. One eminent diplomat thought that it would be an excellent example for France and Germany, or Italy and France. It was best operative for adjoining countries.

The commission consists of six members, three from each country and one international authority said that the secret of its success was that it actually went to the scene of the dispute. There was the case of the Trail smelter, whose fumes spread south across the border and wiped out the vegetation on the American side so that nothing would grow. The commission went down there, held hearings, saw the damage and was able to get first hand knowledge of the situation. "It would have taken years to accomplish all that by diplomatic conference," said my informant.

The United States has a number of commissions operating. There is the Bryan peace pact with the South American countries, which has, for instance, one member from Brazil, one from the United States and a third who is neutral. Senator Dandurand, of Canada, was asked to be the neutral. There is the more important treaty of arbitration and conciliation between the United States and Germany, on which John W. Daise, a noted Canadian editor, is the neutral member.

Should international commissions like that of Canada and the United States be set up between nations generally, the question would arise as to whether one national commission should operate in each country negotiating with every other country, or whether there would be a separate commission with every country, as a Canada-United States commission, another Canada-France, another Canada-Germany and so forth. Such a multiplicity of commissions in each country would be cumbersome. There were fifty-two countries signing the Kellogg multilateral treaty.

The Canada-United States commission, while primarily for the settlement of boundary disputes, may deal with any matter referred to it by the two Governments. It may make findings or merely recommendations. It may direct remedies. In all its cases, however, it has so far been successful in arriving at common ground where all the commissioners, both Canadian and American, were unanimous.

"If we understood the value of the suitings, not only as a flavoring, but as a brain stimulant," says a writer on "Foodstuffs," "the value would be immeasurably increased." Foodstuffs may be great and good from the poles to the tropics. But if these suits were universal, it would make the suitings-graters!

Fashion Fancies

By Marie Belmont

A couturier's toast to feminine beauty is this afternoon gown of wine red, transparent velvet. It is a draft from fashion's fountain of eternal youth, both in line and color. For red is one of our most stimulating colors in the new style chart.

This connoisseur offers a model with a draped surplice closing which terminates in a large bow draping diagonally across the lower bodice. The circular skirt gracefully assumes fullness at a low point, insuring the slender lines indicative of youth. Dainty trimmings at the neckline and wrist offer an exquisite claim to good taste.

DEPARTMENT MANAGERS IN RECORD SALE

Annual Event of Hudson's Bay Company Staff Now in Progress at Big Store on Douglas Street

SPLendid RESULTS AHEAD

Once every year it has been the custom of the Hudson's Bay Company management to allot the responsibility of placing a store-wide sale directly in the hands of the department managers. This annual event is now in progress, and will be the major sale of the Fall and Winter season, and was inaugurated only after months of careful planning and preparation. To secure its success, the company's buyers visited the markets of the United States and Eastern Canada, and backed by the enormous purchasing power of the company's eleven stores, secured large quantities of seasonable merchandise, which is now being offered to the public at specially attractive prices. To facilitate the sale and make its success unquestionable, special window displays were undertaken and advertising augmented in the daily papers, while the selling staff was substantially increased to handle the volume of business resulting from the sale, which is now in full swing, all departments working at high speed, the delivery department now handling more business than ever done previously in the history of the store.

The heads of the various departments conducting the present big sale are: Mr. E. Martin, furniture, carpets and draperies; Mr. W. H. Smith, hardware, china and sporting goods; Mr. A. D. Colman, music, radios, pianos and records; Mr. Bennett, sewing machines; Mr. H. E. Keith, children's wear, women's underwear and knitted goods; Miss M. B. Cicerio, millinery; Miss M. LAST RITES HELD FOR ARCHBISHOP

Archbishop Mathieu, of Regina, Buried in Presence of Thousands of Mourners

REGINA, Oct. 31.—Through streets white with fresh snow under grey skies, the body of Right Rev. O. E. Mathieu, Archbishop of Regina, was borne to its last resting place in Regina cemetery this morning, following an impressive and solemn funeral service at Holy Rosary Cathedral. Hundreds of automobiles filled with mourners followed the cortege.

The last rites for the Archbishop, held under the high vaulted roof of the cathedral, were marked by all the solemnity and splendor of an ecclesiastical tribute. Scores of church dignitaries, priests and altar boys filled the large chancel, while representatives of state and community occupied prominent positions in front of the incline where the body of His Grace had remained in state from Monday night. Hundreds packed the church, hundreds of others heard the service in the basement auditorium through a loudspeaker arrangement and thousands heard the service broadcast over the radio.

The pontifical funeral mass was celebrated by Archbishop Andrea Casulo, Apostolic Delegate to Canada. His Eminence Cardinal Rouleau, Archbishop of Quebec, delivered the funeral oration in French. The eulogy in English was made by His Grace Most Rev. A. Sinnott, Archbishop of Winnipeg.

Flip Does Striped Chipmunk a Good Turn

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

None to himself alone may live;
The law of life is take and give,
—Old Mother Nature.

Flip the Terrier had learned much since he came to Farmer Brown's farm to live. He was learning every day. He had been a most conceited little fellow when he arrived, but much of that conceit had been taken out of him by the lessons he had learned. When he had first seen Striped Chipmunk and had chased him, it had not entered his head that Striped Chipmunk was in his way as smart as Flip imagined himself to be. But now that he had learned a little bit about Striped Chipmunk and had found out that Striped Chipmunk could do things that he himself could not do, he had a great deal of respect for the little fellow.

Every day Flip used to go out for a little while to watch Striped Chipmunk work. He liked to see Striped Chipmunk with his cheek pockets stuffed full. He had given up trying to catch him. He knew that Striped Chipmunk was smart enough always to keep watch and always to be near enough to a safe place. It was while Flip was sitting watching Striped Chipmunk's hole that he had a chance to do Striped Chipmunk a good turn. He had seen Striped Chipmunk go out and he was waiting to see him return with his pockets full of seeds. A movement of some grass not far from Striped Chipmunk's hole caught his attention. He fixed his eyes on the spot. He didn't have to wait long before a small head was thrust out.

Now, Flip had been expecting the head of Striped Chipmunk, but this head, instead of having the cheeks all swollen, was a sleek, smooth, trim little head. It wasn't the head of Striped Chipmunk at all. At first, Flip did not recognize it. Then suddenly it came to him.

Coughed and Coughed Day And Night With Cold On Chest

Mrs. E. E. Shelton, Leader, Sask. writes: "I had a very severe cold on my chest and would cough and cough day and night, until I was nearly beside myself."

"I took all kinds of medicine, but nothing seemed to reach it. My druggist told me to take Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup."

and if that wouldn't help me, as I took home a bottle and from the first dose I could feel great relief, and by the time I had finished it my cough had completely disappeared."

Price, 35c. a bottle. Large family size, 65c. at all druggists and dealers. Put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Then he came out into plain view

"Cousin, it is Shadow the Weasel," thought Flip. "I wonder what he is doing here?" Shadow looked quickly this way and that way. Then he came out into plain view. He began to run along the edge of the driveway toward the hole of Striped Chipmunk. He hadn't found that hole yet. Neither had he found Striped Chipmunk's trail, for he had come from a different direction from the one Striped Chipmunk was using. But in a moment or two, if he kept on, he would find Striped Chipmunk's hole.

Now, Flip knew very little about Shadow the Weasel. He didn't know that if Shadow found Striped Chipmunk's home he would be likely to wait until Striped Chipmunk should return. He didn't know that Striped Chipmunk wouldn't stand the least chance in the world against Shadow the Weasel. He simply didn't like the looks of Shadow and he thought there was a chance that he might catch Shadow before the latter could reach Striped Chipmunk's hole.

So, with a rush, Flip started for Shadow. Now, not knowing of that hole ahead of him, Shadow made no attempt to reach it. He simply bounded to one side, snarling and spitting and his eyes flaming red. He didn't run in flight, as other little furred folk usually ran from Flip. He wasn't afraid. He was simply angry. He wasn't afraid because he was certain that Flip couldn't catch him.

He bounded and dodged this way and that with Flip after him. He would mysteriously disappear under something, or behind something, only to reappear a few seconds later in the most provoking manner. Gradually he was being driven away from Striped Chipmunk's hole. The chase ended at last at Farmer Brown's barn, where Shadow disappeared through a hole in the underpinning.

Now, all unknown to himself, Flip had done Striped Chipmunk a good turn—a very good turn. He had driven Shadow the Weasel away before Shadow had discovered where Striped Chipmunk was living. Striped Chipmunk was living.

Canoeists Reach Winnipeg From Hudson Bay Area

WINNIPEG, Oct. 31.—From Chesterfield Inlet to Havana, Cuba, 8,000 miles of paddling and hiking, such is the feat being attempted by Charles Plaininshak, hunter and prospector, known to the Eskimo as "The Great White Master of the Barrens."

Mr. Plaininshak is accompanied by his two little children, Ines, aged nine, and Tony, aged seven, and by Frank O'Grady, a prospector. Dressed in hooded caribou skin coats and beaded moccasins, traveling in a canoe carrying, in addition to themselves, their camping equipment and four husky dogs, they drew into the bank of the Red River yesterday.

They had paddled up the River from Lake Winnipeg, completing the first leg of their journey. The four adventurers left The Pas last March, traveling by dog train to Frog Portage, on the Churchill River, where Mr. Plaininshak has had a farm for some time. The most northerly farm in the Canadian West, he claims. From Frog Portage they paddled to the south end of Reindeer Lake, only to find the lake a vast expanse of snow-covered ice. Building a sled, they transported the canoe to Porcupine Point, at the north end of the lake, where in the middle of June they were icebound for ten days. Finally, crossing the northern border of Saskatchewan into the Northwest Territories, they made their way across the Ennadaid and Augikimi lakes by the Whitefaw River to Baker Lake and Chesterfield Inlet, the most northerly point reached.

The return trip, commenced almost at once, followed the same route as far as Ennadaid Lake. Branching off there they went east to Windy Lake, where at the Hudson's Bay post, they met three white men, said Mr. Plaininshak, they saw in the Northwest Territories. And from the time they left The Pas until they returned, they met only one white woman, Mrs. M. Maclean, at Lac du Brochet, Man. From Windy Lake they canoed by way of Sandy Lake, where they saw a herd of thousands of caribou, to the Pas. Then down the Saskatchewan River to Cedar Lake and Grand Rapids, and out on Lake Winnipeg. Hugging the west side as far as Reindeer Island, they crossed to Berens River and crept down the lake shore to Selkirk.

CHRONIC RHEUMATISM

In yesterday's article I explained about the causes and treatment of acute rheumatic fever. The fundamental causes of chronic rheumatism are practically the same and, in fact, the chronic form often develops after a case of acute rheumatic fever which has been improperly treated.

In all rheumatic disorders, the primary causes lie in the poisoning which comes from intestinal absorption of toxins. In the slower developing forms of rheumatism, such as in articular rheumatism, the body gradually becomes filled with those certain poisons peculiar to rheumatism. The irritating effect of these poisons upon the bones at their joints constitutes the principal painful symptoms. The body is literally flooded with morbid material and it seems as though some of these poisons are deposited in the joints as the blood passes through these parts.

The bones are hardest at the joints, and it is here where there are the finest microscopic blood vessels that the most congestion takes place.

In the cure of all forms of chronic rheumatism, the patient's blood must be thoroughly cleansed of all toxic material. Even this does not guarantee the permanency of the cure which depends upon the proper functioning of the colon where the rheumatic toxins are developed. The prosoaped or sagging colon must be protected; the muscular tone of the intestines must be improved; colitis must be eliminated, and the patient must do everything possible to produce at least one complete bowel movement to each meal eaten during the day.

When a case of rheumatic arthritis has fully developed, it is a discouraging task to try to bring about a cure through any simple dietetic change. The fasting cure will do more in two or three weeks than

HOLD CONFERENCE

VANCOUVER, Oct. 31.—The fifth triennial conference of the National Council of Education will be held in Halifax in the Fall of 1931, it was announced at a committee meeting of the council here last night. Education in its relation to health will be the subject of the conference.

It is often necessary to take several fasts before a complete cure can be effected. It is, sometimes necessary for the patient to reduce a great deal of weight before a complete recovery. In some cases the joints which have been affected will still remain larger than normal. In all cases under the proper treatment, it is possible for the patient to completely lose all the soreness in the muscles or joints. The manipulative treatments should not be used on any joint or part of the body that is tender until after all soreness has disappeared. Tomorrow—After Treatment of Rheumatism.

MUSKRAT YIELDS STORE OF WEALTH

Government Booklet Says That Increase in Number of Animal Is Pressing Need

The Department of the Interior has produced a booklet, "The Muskrat: A Canadian Fur Resource," which draws attention to the value of the muskrat as a pelt provider. The little animal is one of the most important fur beasts in Canada and the object of the booklet is to encourage interest in its breeding, for which the numerous marsh lands to be found in Canada are especially suited. It should be unnecessary to explain that "Hudson seal," coats of which command a high price in the shops of the cities and towns, is muskrat. The muskrat pelt is used in the making of many other articles of fur and is effective whether natural, plucked, blended or dyed. It varies largely in texture and color, due to climatic and other conditions of location. In general, the color is brownish, darker on the back and lighter on the sides and underneath. The term "black muskrat" refers only to the color, which is somewhat rare in the wild state. The pelt of the "black" muskrat surpasses in density and lustre that of the brown, is rated higher and commands a bigger price, especially when used in the natural state, undyed. In durability the muskrat pelt is ranked at 37 per cent, as compared with the pelt of the otter, which is a full 100 per cent.

The average size of the pelt is eight inches by twelve. Dressing and dyeing of undeveloped furs is now carried on successfully in this country. Canadian dyers turning out a product that is perhaps superior in quality, in life of leather and workmanship, to that produced in Europe, which not so long ago had the field to itself. The seal-dyed muskrat, in fact, has been so readily accepted for its worth by the public that it is itself in turn subject to imitation, the imitations being made mainly from European or Australian rabbit. "Seal coats" are not in reality always seal.

The Government booklet declares that an increase in the numbers of muskrats is a pressing need and Canada is an ideal land for muskrat farming. In the last recorded year, 1926-27, the catch was less by more than 178,000 pelts than during the preceding year and more than 700,000 less than for 1924-25. In the 1926-27 season the pelts taken in Canada numbered 1,774,954, of an average value of $1.68, the highest average value recorded in the Dominion statistics. At the fur auctions the treated pelts bring from $1 to $3.25 each.

Muskrat farming is already fairly well established there being 172 farms in operation throughout the Dominion. The largest number of muskrats are taken in Ontario, the 1927 figure for that province being 169,967; in Quebec the number was 128,713. The muskrat is a vegetarian, feeding on bulbous and other aquatic growths of its natural habitat. It is also fond of grain, apples, corn, turnips, parsnips, etc. It is an animal that thrives with little encouragement and lends itself well to fur farming. The Government's booklet aims to draw attention to its great value as a fur resource and contains all necessary information connected with the breeding on farms. The muskrat industry may be expected to develop greatly in this country. The demand is increasing faster than the natural supply and the desire to alter this condition to the benefit of the farmer, the dealer and the customer.

CFCT To Offer a Varied Programme

CFCT will not broadcast any market quotations today, due to the fact that the New York and other exchanges will be closed all day. The local station's first broadcast, therefore, will take place at 5:30, when a great many boys and girls will be listening to their radios. At this time every Friday evening Auntie Babs entertains the boys and girls from the studio of CFCT, and tonight's period will probably be extended fifteen minutes, using the time that the closing market quotations usually occupy. Then, at 6:15, another nightly hour with "The Sunset Broadcasters" will be presented for the approval of radio enthusiasts. The Sunset Trio will hold the attention of the unseen audience, entertaining with an hour of classical and semi-classical music.

Lotter's overture, "Three Days," will serve to open tonight's "Sunset" programme, immediately followed by Marchetti's concert waltz, "Beloved." Reynard's intermezzo, "Telling of 'The Legend of a Rose,'" will then be rendered by the delightful combination of violin, cello and piano. Charles Godfrey's selection of "Recollections of Gounod" is also programmed for presentation this evening, along with Squire's "Un Pae d'Amour," played as a cello solo, and Borowski's beautiful "Adoration" a violin offering. This evening's hour of ensemble music over CFCT during the dinner hour will draw to a close with a collection of room. CFCT, Victoria's radio station, will continue on the air until the mystic hour of midnight, and then silence will reign supreme for a few hours.

Markets Representative in London Deals With Displays of British Columbia Apples at Covent Garden

TRADE JOURNAL PRAISES OFFERING

A letter has been received by Mr. W. W. Duncan, director of markets for the province of British Columbia, from Hon. T. G. Coventry, markets representative in London, quoting prices for British Columbia apples which had just arrived in the Old Country. The prices were very satisfactory.

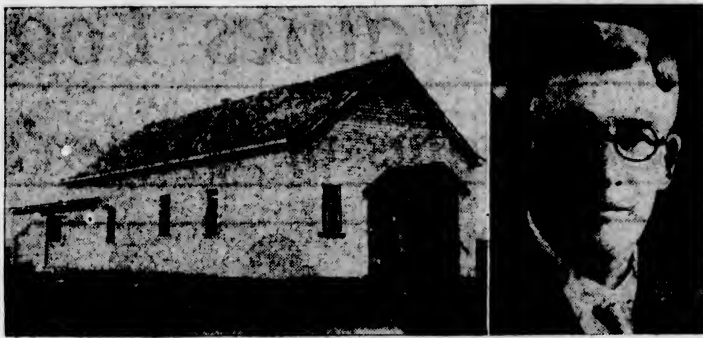

Accompanying the letter Mr. Coventry also forwarded some information with respect to the wakening of the British apple growers to the necessity for protecting their own market in competition with the Dominions and foreign growers.

He forwards a photograph of a display of British grown apples taken in the stall of Mr. Joseph Beckett, of Covent Garden, and these boxes all bear the label brought out by the Department of Agriculture in conjunction with the British Empire Marketing Board, which is known as the National Mark. Mr. Coventry says that this mark is by no means popular with the less reputable people in the trade.

A copy of The Market Grower and Salesman and Fruit Trader, which Mr. Coventry forwards, contains reference to the arrival of British Columbia fruit in London, and comments very appreciatively upon the character of the apples. The trade paper has the following to say:

"In a very difficult week for the scribe, the Big Chief British Columbia apples at any rate deserve a paragraph. Out-

First Church at Churchill, Hudson Bay

BANKED up with earth and with an improvised porch the United Church at Churchill, Canada's new port on Hudson Bay, is prepared for its first winter. The quarters of the missionary are in the rear, which is entered from the wing. The above pictures show the new church and the minister, Rev. Angus Martin, who is responsible for its construction and who was the first missionary to settle in that district, long before the railroad reached Churchill.

Dinner Jacket Still Popular In Washington

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.—The dinner coat still is popular at the White House even though the arbiters of fashion have decreed that it is passe for all except the most informal of occasions. President Hoover, whose distaste for formal dress of any kind is well known to his friends, makes a concession when there is a very state occasion such as a dinner for a Prime Minister or an Ambassador.

Otherwise he appears for dinner in a tuxedo.

And those who are invited to the White House for the rather large dinner gatherings, of which the President and Mrs. Hoover are so fond, are told beforehand that the "black tie" and the short coat are the things to wear.

STREET CAR WILD

TORONTO, Oct. 31.—One man was killed and six other persons injured when the brakes on a street car failed to hold on the Bathurst Street hill here last night. The street car crashed into automobiles.

CALENDAR REFORM TO BE TRIED IN RUSSIA

MOSCOW, Oct. 31.—A new calendar with seventy-two weeks in the year, six weeks in the month and only five days in the week has been drawn up here. It is designed to fit the nonstop, round-the-clock, five-day work week recently instituted in Russian industry. The Academy of Science has gone over the projected calendar and approved it. It has now been referred for further study to the Council of People's Commissaries, which corresponds to the ministerial councils in other countries of Europe.

Saturdays and Sundays are simply done away with in the new calendar. There will be thirty days in each month and each day of the week will always fall upon the same days in each month. A bit of calculation reveals that this fixed calendar calls for only 360 days in the year. This does not agree with the sun on its course, for Old Sol insists upon taking 365 1/4 days for his annual round, the fraction being enough to make an extra day every fourth year, calling for February 29 in Western calendars and making Leap Year the delight of spinsters.

It is simply decreed that these extra five days each year and the added twenty-four hours of leap years should be celebrated as holidays. These days are off in a category by themselves. They belong to no one month and are scattered through the calendar. The day devoted to the day of Lenin, who is venerated as father of the proletarian revolution, is first on the list. It is fixed to come at the end of January, or rather right after that month. In between January 30 and February 1 Lenin will be revered for twenty-four hours, but the event will not be allowed to disturb the arrangement making January 30 fall on a Friday and February 1 on Monday, the next official day.

Similarly there will be holidays between May 1 and November 8. It is pointed out that this arrangement will always make May 1 the 121st day of the year, which happens to be in the present calendar. In leap years the extra day will come as usual at the tail end of February, meaning that there will be an extra twenty-four hours every fourth year between February 30 and March 1.

Greater Tokio Has Population Of Five Million

TOKIO, Oct. 31.—Greater Tokio, with a population of nearly five millions, may claim third place among the world's great cities shortly. City and national authorities are studying plans for the incorporation of eighty-four surrounding towns and villages with the capital, to make an administrative unit of what is already an economic and transportation aggregation. This would more than double Tokio's present population of 2,218,000, crowded into the fifteen original wards of the city with an area of only 31.3 square miles. Greater Tokio would have 4,880,000 citizens in an area of 223 square miles, which is less than Los Angeles' 390 square miles, Greater London's 700 square miles or Greater New York's 299 square miles.

The Tokio plans to claim the capital has retained first place among Japanese cities, which it lost to Osaka's absorption of adjacent communities to make a greater city that counts 2,330,000 inhabitants in 66.8 square miles, almost three times the area of Tokio proper. The figures quoted for Tokio were compiled in census just completed by the municipal authorities. Of the suburban "villages" which Greater Tokio would absorb three have populations of more than 100,000 each. They are Shibuya, Ebura and Higashi Sugamo. Greater Tokio would not include the nearby port of Yokohama with its half-million population, although the intervening space is so closely built up that it is difficult to find open spaces between the two cities.

CHICAGO ERECTS NOBLE BUILDING

New Opera Building Is Unsurpassed in World—Has 3,471 Seats—Cost $20,000,000

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—The Chicago Civic Opera Company, with vast civic splashing and dashing about, is getting ready to move into $20,000,000 worth of the finest opera house equipment in the world. The new forty-two-story aria plant over on Wacker Drive, is to be dedicated November 4, and the more elegant section of the sweating millions will be given a chance to examine the swanky environment, the world's greatest packing centre, provides for prima donnas when it decides to be cultured.

The building is certainly one of the city's noblest, rising pale and sheer from the murky Chicago River. The interior has been carefully guarded from the curious public eye, especially since a $4,000 tapestry was stolen. A part of the income of the offices in the building is to be diverted to the opera at once and the full rental income is expected to support it within two weeks.

From the standpoint of comfort, audibility, mechanical and electric equipment demanded in the production of grand opera, the theatre is unsurpassed in the world. Opera patrons, whether they be in the last row in the upper balcony—which sells as low as 25 cents a seat for certain operas—or the first row of the main floor, will find the same comfort.

Seats in the upper balcony are of the finest materials obtainable, and aisle carpetings as soft to the foot as those of the "golden circle" of boxes which has replaced the old "horseshoe." Every seat has a full view of the working stage.

The huge auditorium seats 3,471, with 186 of these in the thirty-one boxes. The main floor will seat 1,682. The side boxes of the old auditorium have been eliminated and the number of boxes reduced. Three elevators eliminate any stair climbing.

Between acts, when the great steel curtain, measuring thirty-five by fifty feet, comes down, the opera-goer will see perhaps the greatest painting for this type of curtain in the world. Characters from more than thirty operas may be identified in the picture.
